WHEELING, W. VA., DECEMBER 29, 1885

It is given out that hereafter-on and after January 1st, doubtless-the President will hold Senators and Representa tives responsible for their recommendations for appointments for office. This is the season for good resolutions, and this one is worthy the chief magistrate of a great country.

But how is he going to enforce his edict? What are to be the penalties, and how are they to be enforced? The President cannot "hold personally responsible," in the Southern chivalry sense, every Senator and Representative who recommends an unworthy man. He cannot remand the whole batch to the tender mercies of the Lord High Executioner, because under other administrations there was no need of that functionary and the office has not yet been created.

It is a pity that comething of a highly heroic and sufficient character cannot be done to members of Congress who mislead the President into bad, even disgraceful appointments Their offense is a shame ful abuse of confidence. It is obtaining something of value under false pretense, It is slipping a henchman into the Treasury through the keynole, instead of helping him to break in with a crowbar. It is in sulting the people, who by the same act are defrauded and scandalized.

How is the President going to hold Senators and Representatives responsible? It will interest the country to look on and argument against suspending the silver coinage. It would be more reasonable to say that the condition of the country is as good as it is in spite of the unwisdom of Congress in insisting upon making a dollar which is already in excess of the demand, and the further coinage of which is fraught with danger to all values.

Apart from any bearing which the com parison may or may not have on the silver question, it is valuable and instructive as showing how much more can be done with a dollar now than could have been done fifteen years ago.

In sixteen commedities the only one that shows any advance is saited beef which has gained two mills on the pound. Everything else in the list has faller greatly, cotton, mineral oils, pork and sugar to half and less. The necessaries of life, which President Cleveland asks Congress to reduce by cutting down the tariff, have been steadily reducing themselves without Congressional intervention.

Young Women in the Colleges.

Tuft's College has been considering under pressure, the question of admitting women. The decision is against the petitioners, but it is not believed that the ques Capen and Prof. Shipman are both opposed to omitting women, but their opposition is based on strikingly opposite

President Capen fears the women would swoop down on them in great numbers; "their cohorts," perhaps, "gleaming in purple and gold," and this would be bad for the young men, many of whom are divinity students. Prof. Shipman is confident that few women would accept the invitation, that the few would drive away the sterner sex, and the institution find no compensation anywhere for its liberal departure. At least one of these "learned pundits" is wrong, and it is probably both

Our own State University is doing better under its new management. It would have done still better if the doors had been thrown open to the young women of West Virginia. In the case of an institution supported by public taxation, as this is, it is a very great stretch of legislative power to deny admission to applicants on the sole and poor ground of sex.

The maintainance of the University is indefensible except upon the ground that it is part of the common school system of exclude girls from common advantages with the boys? Why, a girl has only to be bad enough, and the State will admit her to all the rights, privileges, protection and education of the Penitentiary!

A Famous Pair of Trousers

A Famous Fair of Treusers.

Philidelphia Press.

Mayor Smith yesterday received from C. Law, of Pittston, for inspection, a pair of trousers made of seventy-five different colored patches and weighing about twenty pounds. A placard containing the following accompanied the curiosity:

"These pants were fifty-two years in actual service by a North Carolina colored gentleman by the name of Sam Williams, better known in his county as 'Father Sam,' who is now at the ripe old age of 108, and still able to walk around. Father of twenty-three children, all living, the eldest being 91 years; ninety-four grandchildren. He was a slave for sixty-four years. These were his wedding pants, and six of his sons wore the same pants for wedding pants. They are highly prized by the old gent and his children. They were sent to me by a friend, who had to deposit $50 as guarantee of their being returned. They were in actual wear thirty-two years, and have been on exhibition for the past twenty years. They have been across the ocean four times and on exhibition in all the large cities of the United States. You are requested to return them on or before January 1, as on that date the youngest son is to be married and he has the promise of them to wear on that occasion."

among the poor to Endia, we ways great, is now said to be unprecedented, and the usual efforts at a Christmas alleviation seem to have been paralyzed by the immensity of the task, for comparatively little organized charity has been reported. Any day during the past fortnight one could see thousands of faint and ragged wretches prowling outside the wharves, each ready to fight the other in order to be one of the score who were admitted to a day's work for 40 cents if a ship happened to come in. Everywhere business as reported to be worse than it was a year ago. It is said that not a single Christmas publication has yielded a prefit. At the London docks less than one half the quantity of wine has been taken out of bond that was taken out last year. More tangible luxuries suffer in the same way. When it was stated a year ago that the British shipbuilding industries were off half a million tons it seemed that the worst showing had passed; but the report now is likely to show another diminution and one nearly as great. This is a sample of all industries, while the farmers' prices have reached a starvation point. And yet the cost of the necessaries of life is greater than it was then, owing to the grievous condition of the middlemen, whom the long credit system forces to plunder cash purchasers. While the price of cattle is almost haved, butchers' meat is as high as ever, and the Kent farmers are combining to do their own killing in order to get rid of the butchers altogether. The under too, will show a large decrease in receipts despite the increased taxation. And a Great Bargain for a Young Man. The lancet.

Wuai is a Cold?

The lancet.

It is startling to discover how little we know about the common forms of discase. For example, a "cold"—What is it? How is it produced, and in what does it consist? It is easy to say a cold is a chill. A chill of what part of the organism? We know by daily experience that the body as a whole, or any of its parls, may be reduced to a considerably lower temperature than will suffice to give a man a cold if the no-called chill be inflicted upon the surface suddenly. Is it, then, the suddenness of a reduction of temperature that causes the cold? It would be strange if it were so, because few of the most susceptible of mortals would take cold from simply handling a piece of cold metal or accidental contact with ice. The truth would seem to be, that what we call cold-taking is the result of a sufficient impression of cold to reduce the vital energy of nervecenters presiding over the functions in special organs. If this be the fact it is easy to see why nature has provided the stimulus of a strong fit of succang to rouse the dormant centers and enable them at once to resume work and avoid evil consequences. This explains why the worst effects of cold do not, as a rule, follow up a "chill" which excites much sneezing. Shivering is a less effective convulsion to restore the paralyzed nervous energy, but, in a lower degree, it may answer the same purpose. The shivering that results from the effect of a poison of the nervous centers is a totally different matter. We speak only of the quick muscular agitation and teeth-chattering which occur whenever the body is exposed to cold and evil results do not ensue. It follows, from what we have said, that the natural indication to ward off the effects of a chill is to restore the vital energy of the nerve centers, and there is no more potent influence by which to attain this object than a strong and sustained effort of the will. The man who resolves not to take a cold seldom does. 1215 Market St., opp. McLure House REGULAR TUESDAY PACKET FOR Parkersburg, Pomercy, Gallipolis, Ilronion, Huntington, Portemouth, Mays Ville, Cincinnati and Louwville, the MART F, NOLL, Clerk.
